The DIMMER VIEW

by Max Goodwin

A Garden on Every Plot

Many are amazed at the editorial productivity of State Senator Bill Richardson.

He touches, usually, on subjects that are near and dear to my giblets. He approaches some of the stupidities of government at gut level. His effectiveness may be small but his attitude is right.

The other day he became upset with a great experiment that's getting under way in California having to do with the turnip industry.

Said Sen. Richardson, "If you think this is a put on, guess again."

He reminded that about 200 years ago, our ancestors in this country were faced with the problem of taxation without representation.

"Now, you and I face turnips without representation!"

He explained that the State of California is going into the community garden business.

"That's right," he said, "Farmer Brown and some of his organic helpmates have come up with another wonderful way to spend our tax money."

"Although you probably won't see a shovel or a hoe sticking out of Jerry Brown's modest-image Plymouth, he is spending thousands and thousands of our tax dollars to fund a bureaucrat-generated program to provide more community gardens."

"What is a community garden, you ask? Well, a community garden is a small plot of land, usually on a vacant lot, on which a few local people plant vegetables."

"There's basically nothing wrong with that; I like to garden myself. I don't, however, ask someone else to foot the bill for my horticultural needs or pleasures."

"Actually, there hasn't been any clamoring from the people for this new state program but, of course, there usually isn't. Remember, if there weren't new programs, bureaucrats wouldn't have anything to do; they might even be removed as an unnecessary burden on the taxpayer. The creation of the community garden program is a classic example of bureaucratic self-generation," he said.

"Jerry Brown's new office of Appropriate Technology, a group of social planners who tell us what is appropriate to spend our tax dollars on, dreamed up this baby."

"It should fit into other great schemes, such as Jerry's 'diamond lanes'. That philosophy moved off the freeways and onto the vacant lots."

In a booklet, dated July 1, the Office of Appropriate Technology published "Community Gardens in California" by Rosemary Menninger. Can you guess what Menninger's first recommendation was?

She recommended that she be a statewide garden coordinator. "Surprise, Surprise," commented Richardson.

Within 3 months, Menninger was appointed as our new State Garden Coordinator at $1,500 a month—a lot of lettuce for Menninger's personal garden.

"But surely, you say, there must be justification for this grand garden scheme," observes Richardson. "Menninger's booklet talks about how the Pilgrims used gardens collectively. She neglected to mention that they almost starved to death with their gardens by committee. It wasn't until the Pilgrims started to till their own land that prosperity finally came to them," noted Richardson.

The booklet also mentions high food prices. Jerry Brown's concern for high food prices is suspect since it was one of his top social schemers who wrote a proposal containing much of the new 160-acre limitation to break up our state's current agricultural structure.

If you think food prices are high now, you had better pray that this new program doesn't go into effect.

Menninger's booklet also says we need community gardens because of a "heightened awareness of nature" and the need to strengthen neighborhood bonds.

"When the taxpayer becomes aware of this latest doondoggle," says Richardson, "I suspect there will be more gnashing of teeth than strengthening of bonds."

"The booklet also gives the veiled impressions that the produce we buy in the store somehow isn't as good as that which is grown on a vacant lot. It gives the idea that we might be better off living in some kind of commune," he said.

Whether "appropriate technology" is private gardening by citizens with private resources or private gardening at the expense of the harassed taxpayer doesn't make much of an argument in the logical mind. More properly, it should be addressed "inappropriate technology."

Says Richardson, "If Jerry Brown continues to sow the seeds of bankruptcy, maybe we'd better pray that he has a political crop failure Election Day, November 7, 1978."

The Relentless Alarm

Dr. Dennis McLaughlin, a dentist of Skyline dr. in Lemon Grove had been distressed for weeks regarding a methodone center which had acquired the medical facility operated by his neighbor Dr. Louis Schlom at 445 Skyline dr.

Dr. Schlom moved out pending the purchaser occupying the building.

Whether Dr. McLaughlin's protests contributed to the proposed center failing to close the escrow on Dr. Schlom's property and letting the methodone center project die, is not known.

But after a reasonable time during which Dr. Schlom had heard nothing from the prospective purchasers, he decided to reopen his building—but all the keys had been given to the prospective purchasers who had installed certain facilities therein—including a fail-safe intrusion system.

Dr. Schlom learned of the latter device after he managed to enter the building with the help of a locksmith.

A squad of sheriff's deputies were soon on the scene preparing to take the intruder into custody for what appeared to be a case of breaking and entering. The tip-off, of course, had come by way of the elaborate burglar alarm.

It didn't take long for Dr. Schlom and the police to clear up the matter since the doctor was not guilty of anything.

It is reassuring that there are burglar alarm systems which really work and police who respond alertly to alarm signals.

Innocence Claimed in Spring Valley Slaying

Cecil Edward McIntyre, 18, of 587 Concepcion ave., Spring Valley, this week claimed innocence in the death of Mrs. Teresa Evelyn Weimann, 43, of 662 Concepcion ave.

Weimann disappeared about 11:30 p.m. Christmas Eve after visiting a convenience market on Grand ave.

Her body, clad only in knee-length nylon stockings, was found December 27 partially buried in the Kempton Elementary School playground. Her hands were bound behind her back by her bra straps. The body was found by children at play.

Detectives found her clothing scattered in the school area. Her purse and other items were found buried. A watch, checkbook and glasses are still missing, detectives said.

A broken belt and a man's blood-spattered T-shirt were found near the body.

McIntyre, who lives 2 blocks from the victim, was arrested Thursday at his home.

McIntyre and Weimann are both reported to have been in attendance at a Christmas party in the neighborhood.

McIntyre gave his true name as Cecil Edward Wilcox when he pleaded innocent in El Cajon Municipal Court Tuesday.

A preliminary hearing has been set for January 17 and he was ordered held without bail.

Sups Back Actions To Designate SD Disaster Area

The Board of Supervisors approved on Tuesday actions taken by the director of Emergency Services designating San Diego County a disaster area in the wake of high winds of three weeks ago.

Due to a deadline in the law, acting Director of Emergency Services Frank Panarisi had to file for disaster assistance with the federal government over the holidays.

The law requires filing for federal disaster assistance funds within ten days of the disaster.

Panarisi informed the Board of Supervisors on December 22 that he sent a telegram to Governor Jerry Brown describing the conditions existing in the county as a result of the high winds.

Budget OK'd for January 1-June 30

City Sees $1,597,000 Income Against $369,800 Expenditure

The Lemon Grove City Council meeting brought the time average down Tuesday night.

After a marathon 7:30-to-midnight meeting December 19, this week's meeting closed after 36 minutes of deliberation.

A combination of a rain-swept night and a changed date—the meeting was deferred one day because of the January 1 holiday—brought to the meeting only a handful of spectators. In spite of the bobtailed meeting, much was accomplished.

The council approved a resolution to set a date for a public hearing on the conflict of interest code to be adopted by February 10. The code will affect members of the council as well as certain designated employees.

The council also whipped through a resolution approving a budget for the period of January 1-June 30. In it, City Manager Jack Shelver estimated revenues to be upward of $1,597,000 carrying expenditures of $369,800. Shelver noted that the City had no income-outgo experience in some categories, thus making various items strictly guesswork.

Income items that are notable are Sales and Use Taxes, $351,500; Motor Vehicle in Lieu Taxes, $320,000; Gas Tax/Traffic Safety income $97,000; Construction $100,000.

Income from business licenses was estimated to be

Three liquor license applications, all transfers, got the Council's OK.

Mayor Jim Dorman approved the attendance of 3 members to a Planning Commissioners Institute sponsored by the League of California Cities in Oakland February 1-3. Those planning to attend are Councilman Dale Bailey, Jack Doherty and Dell Lake. The Council will be dealing with various zoning matters as their experience grows.

The next meeting will again be at the L.G. Education Center at 7:30 on January 16. The Center is at Kempf and Lincoln. City Hall is at Main and North sts.

LG Youth Center—EPIC Team To Cure Youth Problems

If your child runs away from home or refuses to attend school, chances are likely he or she will be referred to the Lemon Grove Youth Center, EPIC, or a new center opening later this month in the La Presa area of Spring Valley.

The Board of Supervisors approved on Tuesday morning a plan to release part of the $1.2 million the county receives in federal Criminal Justice Planning funds to seven county social service organizations for the purpose of developing preventative measure for juvenile crime.

Locally, the Effective Problem Intervention Center (EPIC) and the Lemon Grove Youth Center will band together to provide counseling services to some 320 referrals the police, courts, and schools will make to them per month.

The local cut of the Criminal Justice money comes to about $87,000.

Details of exactly how the program will be worked out are at best sketchy, but EPIC director Paul Christiansen revealed there will be some probationary requirements involved.

"I am certain that at some point probation will become involved," Christiansen said. "At some level, referrals will be made to the project. Our job will be to work with the community to develop some sort of family dynamics and individual family recreational activities to not only help those kids in trouble but hopefully to prevent future problems."

Christiansen added the local sheriffs have at times referred juveniles to EPIC "right off the street."

New Center

The two groups, EPIC and the LG Youth Center, under the auspices of Director Dottie Pettis, will open a new center later this month in the La Presa area of Spring Valley.

According to EPIC's director Christiansen, applications are currently being taken for a staff of that new facility. The relationship between EPIC, the LG Youth Center, and the new center in Spring Valley has been described as "overlapping."

"In Spring Valley, we plan to have the center there focused mostly on recreational activities," Christiansen explained. "Many of the problems with truancy and runaways comes from trouble in family life. By creating activities which build up the family, we hope to prevent many of these problems in the future."

The new Spring Valley office is expected to have a staff of five counselors by January 16.

Chain of Command

Heading up the county-wide project is Patty Prendergast, administrative assistant to Youth for Progress head Glenn Spearman.

Prendergast said Youth for Progress was a private non-profit social service organization started in 1975 with money from the War on Poverty program of the LBJ years.

Prendergast focused the program this way.

"Our purpose will be to catch kids before they get arrested for status offenses such as truancy and running away from home."

The Youth for Progress was tagged for funding from the County Department of Human Services, the ultimate governmental agency involved with funding the operations.

Locally, the Youth for Progress runs the Lemon Grove Youth Center, a social service organization which has been here for two years under the direction of Dottie Pettis.

The Effective Problem Intervention Center (EPIC) will be a sub-contractor for Youth for Progress and will provide the counseling service.

"The ultimate success of the project depends upon the kids," Christiansen reiterated. "We are not gods or magicians. But if the kids really want help we'll try to help them. I'm optimistic that our role will cure some of the problems which currently exist with the young people of the area."

Two Area Residents Die In Holiday Accidents

Two area residents died in traffic accidents on December 28.

The first accident occurred at 3 p.m. on Pacific Highway near Barnett avenue and killed Lori Peckron, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Peckron of 9128 Cambon st., Spring Valley.

Miss Peckron was a passenger in an auto driven by another minor. The car was northbound on Pacific Highway when the driver lost control of the vehicle while making a lane change. The car ran off the road and struck a utility pole, throwing Miss Peckron from the vehicle.

In the second accident of the day, a Lemon Grove resident was killed instantly when the car he was driving struck a pickup truck head-on.

Rain Total 1/10 Inch

Rainfall season starts July 1 each year.

Dead is Richard D. Wilder, 53, of 2815 Dennis lane, Lemon Grove.

Wilder's car, police said, crossed the center line of Highway 67 a half-mile north of Posthill road in Lakeside at about 6:45 p.m.

His vehicle struck a truck driven by Duane Bennett.

Wilder was pinned in his vehicle and was pronounced dead at the scene.

A BLANKET FOR A BUILDING—Workmen from the Pest Termite and Fumigation Service cover Southland Music Company, 3459 Imperial ave., to keep toxic fumes from leaking while they fumigated last week.

According to Gary Garrison of the Termite service, the process took about six hours to complete and the termites also got a dose of tear gas—a measure more to keep the curious away than for the insects.

There's An Answer

by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Vincent Peale

Fifty-three and no tears
Q. As a teenager I cried too easily. I'm 53 now and haven't cried in 35 years.

Is there something wrong with me? I have been married to a wonderful man 30 years, have six children, five grandchildren, but I never have any tears "a comin'."

My eyes are mildly uncomfortably dry all the time. Wish I knew why I never can cry.

A. You don't have to cry to be normal. Continued dryness of the eyes, however, can have either physical or emotional causes.

In addition to seeing your physician you might consider the importance of expressing your thoughts and feelings to those around you.

Marriage and child-raising are tasks which call up the whole range of human emotions, and it is unhealthy to keep them bottled up.

Thank god for your happy life. Cultivate the ability to talk to others about both your joys and sorrows.

Then some day when you are moved deeply enough by sorrow or some overwhelming joy, the tear ducts will open themselves.

are both believers in god. He wants me to have sex with him, but I don't believe in premarital sex and he understands my view.

This is my problem. We pet, and it has been heavily at times. Sometimes I feel guilty about it. Is there anything wrong with petting — heavy or not? You see, I want to do what's right.

A. As a believer in god and the bible, you must exercise decency, honor and self-control. A display of affection, within those guidelines, between people who are honest in love is normal and can be a beautiful part of romance. A violation of such standards will, of course, lead to guilt and sour the relationship.

Heartbroken and Confused

Q. My faith has seen me through raising three children after my husband's polio which left him in a wheelchair for 24 years.

The two oldest have become fine, responsible adults. But the last one, a 17-year-old girl, has completely broken her father's and my heart.

She has broken every bit of faith and trust and has slowly killed our love bit by bit.

I know I should keep a forgiving heart but it is hard. She has treated us like dirt. We are tired and confused. I wonder what feeling I should have for her. Please help.

A. Your little girl is terribly mixed up and will continue to be until and unless she finds herself.

Your feelings toward her are understandable. While she will have to work out her own reconstruction of personality, you can help her by continuing to love her and, every day, calling up in your mind a positive image of this girl as a healthy, well-organized person.

See her, or image her this way and in due course your feelings will be rewarded. Forces will be set in motion which can bring about wonderful changes in your daughter's life.

We have a booklet, "What To Do When," which has helped others with questions such as yours and a copy of it is on its way to you. Anyone wishing a copy should write to us in care of Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564, and one will be sent at no charge.

If there is something you would like to ask Dr. and Mrs. Peale to discuss in this column, write to them in care of Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564.

Chacon Wants Shelter For Battered SD Women

Assemblyman Chacon has requested that San Diego County be given serious consideration as the site for the establishment of a shelter for battered women.

"Not all victims of violence receive their broken bones and bruises at the hands of strangers; some are attacked by members of their own families," said Assemblyman Chacon in a letter to the State Department of Health.

"For example, between 20% and 25% of all married women are regularly assaulted by their husbands. During 1971, nearly 1/3 of all female homicide victims in California were murdered by their husbands," Chacon added. "Domestic violence not only endangers the lives of family members, but also accounts for a high percentage of the deaths and injuries sustained by police officers responding to calls for help. According to the FBI, one out of every five officers killed in the line of duty in 1974, died while trying to intercede during a family fight."

"In many cases, battered women with few job skills, dependent children, and no place to turn for support—are reluctant to leave their husbands."

"Battered women have many needs, but of these greatest is to have a temporary shelter, one in which they can find peer understanding, counseling and access to supportive services," Assemblyman Chacon added.

"The approval of a shelter in San Diego will not only assist individuals who are the victims of marital violence, but will go a long way towards gaining public understanding and assistance in recognizing the need to find solutions to this serious problem," Assemblyman Chacon added.

Applications Needed For Family Planning

The State Health Department has begun soliciting applications from public agencies and non-profit organizations to provide $20 million worth of free family planning care for low income Californians during the 1978-79 fiscal year.

Private non-profit agencies and hospitals, and county health departments are among these eligible for the funding, $16 million of which will be drawn from the State General Fund and $4 million from the Federal Government.

In the current fiscal year about 400,000 Californians receive such family planning care through 120 agencies and organizations under contract with the State.

Application forms are available from the State Department's Office of Family Planning, 714 P Street, Room 398, Sacramento, California 95814. Completed application forms must be submitted to that office, postmarked no later than February 1, 1978.

Johnny Unitas To Try Comeback - On Golf Course

PHOENIX—Football superstar Johnny Unitas is making a comeback next year. No, not in football with the Chargers but in golf in the American Airlines Classic.

After an absence of 3 years because of business commitments and schedule conflicts, tournament chairman Randall Malin said Unitas will play again in the 12th annual Classic January 27-29 at the Registry Resort and McCormick Ranch Country Club outside Scottsdale.

"Johnny Unitas is a class individual and imparts much prestige to our event," said Malin. "We're obviously pleased Johnny can rejoin us."

Unitas, a charter member of the Classic in 1967, tied for eighth in the inaugural tournament with Bob Bailey, then with the Los Angeles Dodgers. In 1970 Unitas and Dave McNally, Baltimore Orioles pitcher, finished fifth.

One football star and his baseball counterpart are partners in this 54-hole, best ball event.

Hall of Famers Joe DiMaggio and Otto Graham are defending champions.

Mariners (2-0) Home Saturday Play Shamrocks in S.F. Friday

After 10 days without a game, San Diego's Mariners return to action this weekend. Friday night the Mariners meet the San Francisco Shamrocks at the Cow Palace, then return home Saturday night for their first game of the year against the Long Beach Sharks.

This is the third game in a row between the Mariners and the Shamrocks, with the San Diego Skaters having won both contests . . . 7-5 at the Sports Arena and 2-1 at the Cow Palace.

As the new year begins the Mariners lead the league with four points (2-0). San Francisco (1-3) and Long Beach (1-0) are tied for second with two points each. That leaves the Phoenix Roadrunners (0-1) in the basement.

After only one game at home, Mariner fans have a new hero. Young center, Bob Sauvre, from Montreal, thrilled the opening night crowd with four goals and an assist. He also assisted on both Mariner goals the next night at the Cow Palace. So he leads the San Diego Skaters with four goals and three assists. Defenseman Mike Keeler scored the first goal in each of the two Mariner games, and also has an assist for three points. Left Wing Brian Bye has three assists for three points.

Left Wing Peter Jack is the most penalized Mariner to this point . . . having picked up two penalties for 15 minutes. Defenseman Rich Hart has been sent to the box four times for 8 minutes, while defenseman Dwayne Pentland has spent 9 minutes in the "sin-bin" on three calls.

The Mariners have outscored the opposition 9-6. They have also out-penalized the opposition 16 to 15. But in penalty minutes, the opposition has 50 minutes and the Mariners 46.

Goaltender Clay Hebertson has seen all the action so far this season, having a 2-0 record. He's allowed 6 goals, for a 3.00 average. He's stopped 54 of the 60 shots on goal.

The Mariners will be trying to stay on top of the league this weekend when they play at San Francisco Friday night, and return to host Long Beach Saturday night.

Game time both nights is 8 p.m. Both games can be heard on KSON Radio, with the "Butch Barber Show" beginning at 7:50.

Weiskopf To Go In '78 AWSO Open

Tom Weiskopf, long regarded as having as much potential as anyone who ever played golf, will return to the site of his first tournament victory in 1968 when he competes in the $200,000 Andy Williams San Diego Open here on Jan. 25-29.

Entry of the 6-3, 185-pound Ohio State graduate in the AWSO recalls his dramatic victory here in the first tournament co-sponsored by Andy Williams and the Century

Cub of San Diego. Weiskopf lagged in a 25-foot eagle putt on the final hole to edge Al Geiberger by one stroke for the initial win in a career that began three years earlier.

Since then long-hitting Tom has won a total of 12 tour events including the 1973 British Open and is now fifth on the all-time money list with $1,553,826. He finished sixth in 1977 earnings, having won the Kemper Open last June.

The most notable event in Weiskopf's career, however, was a streak in 1973 that qualified him for superstardom. In an eight-week span he won five tournaments including the British and Canadian Opens and, carrying on to two more tournaments that summer, he shot in the 60's in 20 out of 40 rounds.

That year proved Tom's most lucrative, as he pocketed $255,463 and finished third in earnings, one of the three times he has finished this high on the money list.

VLM Little League Signup Schedules

Vista La Mesa Little League registration for youngsters between the ages of 7 and 13 will be conducted 10 a.m.-2 p.m. January 7, 14 and 21 at the league field, 3900 King st.

President Bernie Brandt said potential players must be 8 years of age by August 1, and not reach the age of 13 before August 1, to qualify for the major and minor league program.

Youngsters must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian and present an official birth certificate or certificate copy at the registration.

League boundaries include Vista La Mesa and areas of Lemon Grove bounded on the south by Central ave. to the eastern intersection of Imperial ave. The eastern Lemon Grove limit continues to the length of Broadway.

To discuss league residency or age requirements call Brandt, 460-5280, vice president Marcia Immel, 583-1280, or player agent Sal Gallegos, 460-1552.

Coffee and doughnuts will be served on each signup date.

Outdoors & Travel

By E. L. "Buck" Rogers

I received a letter from a kid the other day who asked, "What is a bass?"

What is a bass?

The question was so ridiculous that I almost threw his letter into a wastebasket. But, the more I got to thinking about the subject, the more intrigued I became with the implications of this question. And, I would like to answer it as best I can.

First of all, the largemouth is our most popular gamefish. It is found in all of our 50 states and grows to a respectable 20 pounds or more. Research indicates that the bass is one of the most intelligent of freshwater fishes. Bass can communicate with each other and perhaps with other aquatic creatures. They can learn, and with certain limitations, remember things.

Bass have a voracious appetite. And a temper. They appreciate body comforts, lead a reasonable sex life, and will not expend an ounce more energy to achieve an objective than they absolutely have to.

Bass have good vision and are not color blind. They can differentiate lure color at depths of 10 feet or more, depending on available light and clarity of the water. If the water is calm, they can also see a man walking on the bank or standing up in a boat. Hearing, smell, and taste senses are better developed than ours, but primarily they are sight hunters, like a lion or leopard. In contrast, a catfish might be compared to a hound, which depends on his nose to follow a trail.

Water temperature is an essential to a bass's comfort as air temperature is to ours, and their preference is remarkably similar. A bass is most comfortable in water ranging from 68 to 75 degrees; that climate agrees with me, too.

Environment has an effect on bass behavior, just as it does with us. As a result, a bass living in a murky Texas impoundment is a different fish from one living in a clear Ozark stream or in a shallow Florida lake.

A bass has a voracious appetite and spends most of its waking hours looking for food. A bass can go several days without food, but to grow and prosper it needs to consume three percent of its body weight per day. Translated into bass vittles, this adds up to two dozen minnows or crawfish daily.

It also has been proven that all bass are not the same, regardless of their environment. Each has individual traits. One bass may throw a lure and remember the experience for two seasons. Another bass, identified by a tag, has been caught and released a dozen times in one year and keeps coming back for more. Some bass jump when hooked. Some won't. Some may be attracted by a particular color. Others are repelled by it.

Have I answered the question? I think not. Trying to determine who and what a bass is will keep millions of anglers busy for years to come.

That's what makes fishing so interesting.

TAKE FIVE

by John E. Wirges

Somehow or other I got 1978 started off on the wrong foot. Sure, we had a little party and I drank too much, but I do that every year. No need for my ever lovin' to get excited about that.

And I wasn't driving. We always hold our New Year's Eve parties at home. That way I can stumble into bed without getting behind a steering wheel. No need to drive when you're flying.

A vaguely remember making a pass at a pretty girl in a sexy black blouse, but I do that every year, too. It was even funny this time. My own wife was wearing the sexy black blouse.

She didn't even act mad at the time. All she said was something like, "How come you have to get drunk and do this in front of a crowd of people? Why can't you do it when we're alone?"

You can see it was just a normal, run-of-the-mill New Year's Eve party. Nothing to get mad about.

I suppose she could have taken on a little heat on New Year's Day. Instead of helping take down the tree and clean up the family room, I loaded up a tray of munchies and carted a couple of 6-packs into the living room and enjoyed watching the Denvers whip the Oakland and then cheered the Cowboys as they walloped the Minnesotas.

Come to think of it, she did get a little short tempered when I got careless with all those peanut shells, but I did let her vacuum up during halftime. I mean, I'm a guy that gets along. Right?

I don't remember much of the party, but I do remember her being a little sore during those pro playoff games. I couldn't figure out why. She's certainly not a damn Raider fan. And I don't think she even knows where Minnesota is. Just up near Alaska somewhere, is all.

Well, I wasn't going to let her sour disposition spoil my circulation. And you can really get in a huge chunk of celebrating with two official New Year's Day. One for pro games, one for bowl games. Now that's what I call planning.

Monday was supposed to be the day I would help take down the outside lights and pack up and store everything away until next year, but you can't work and watch football, too. I let the kids fight it out. They tear everything else down, why not Christmas lights, too.

I had a tough time with both the Cotton Bowl and the Sugar Bowl going at the same time, but I listened to Notre Dame bluster Texas on the radio and watched Alabama whistle Ohio State down to size. Then it was a breeze. The Orange Bowl followed the Rose Bowl on the same channel and I didn't even have to move.

"I just hope to God you've had enough football," hissed my wife during halftime of the Arkansas slaughter of Oklahoma. "You've been sitting and stuffing your face and swilling beer for 3 days watching nothing but that stupid game. It's a wonder you can walk."

"Come on," I said trying to kid her along. "I walked to the bathroom every half hour or so. That's exercise." If it wasn't for your bladder, I'd think you were dead," she cackled. "Thank God the football season is over."

"Not so," I laughed. "This weekend we have the Senior Bowl and the Hula Bowl, then the following week we get the Super Bowl and a week later we have the Pro Bowl. There is at least 3 more weeks of televised football. It's a great way to start the year."

"You'll never make it," sweet-talked my wife. "You're getting so fat sitting there watching those stupid games that someday you'll explode all over the damn television set."

"In just 3 weeks," I asked. "Come on. It's only a game that I enjoy watching. Where's the harm?"

"You'd better get to jogging and lose some of that fat," she cracked. "Or you'll never make it next season."

Boy she was mad. I didn't have the heart to tell her Joe Garagiola and the Tucson Open start the Television Golf Season this weekend.

S.D. County Media to Fete Tom Watson at La Costa

RANCHO LA COSTA—Tom Watson, the unanimous selection for 1977 MONY Pro of the Year, will be honored Monday, January 9, by the West Coast sports media at the La Costa Resort Hotel, Spa and Country Club.

Watson, 28, had an extraordinary year in his sixth season on the PGA Tour.

The Stanford psychology graduate won five tournaments in 1977, including two majors — the Masters and British Open for the second time in three years. He established tournament records in winning the Bing Crosby and Andy Williams-San Diego Open back-to-back. The Western was his fifth victory.

Watson fashioned an incredible high-level consistency performance. In 23 tournaments he finished in the Top Ten 17 times. For this effort, he was compensated with $310,653. Only Johnny Miller, $353,021 in 1974, and Jack Nicklaus, $320,542 in 1972, have earned more in one year.

The budding superstar from Kansas City also won the Vardon Trophy because of 70.32 stroke average for 90 rounds, lowest in the last six years. Nicklaus was second with 70.37 for only 68 rounds.

Watson, who has $838,962 lifetime earnings and nine victories, will show writers and sportscasters how he accomplished these feats with an hour clinic and exhibition before the 10th annual Pro of the Year Dinner.

Hosts for the day are Al-lard Roen, tournament chairman of the 26th annual $225,000 MONY Tournament of Champions, which will be played at La Costa April 13-16, and Sam Cantor, senior vice president of Mutual of New York.

Previous honorees have been Billy Casper, 1968; Orville Moody, 1969; Jack Nicklaus, 1970; Lee Trevino, 1971; Jack Nicklaus, 1972; Tom Weiskopf, 1973; Johnny Miller, 1974; Jack Nicklaus, 1975, and Ben Crenshaw, 1976.

Minor Managers Named by Padres

The San Diego Padres have named their lineup of minor league managers for the 1978 season with the addition of former major league pitcher Eddie Watt, it was announced by Padres Vice President, General Manager Bob Fontaine.

Heading up the Padres Hawaii Club in the Pacific Coast League for the second consecutive season will be Dick Phillips. Phillips guided the Islanders to the PCL's Western Division title last season with a record of 79-67. Hawaii, however, dropped the championship playoffs to Phoenix, four games to two.

Handling the reins at Amarillo in the Texas League will be Glen Ezell who has moved up from Reno. A second-year manager in the Padres minor league system, Ezell led Reno to a 59-81 record a year ago.

The newest man in the Padres system will be former major league hurler Eddie Watt who will take charge at Reno of the California League. Watt spent 10 years in the majors and posted a record of 38-36 with a 2.91 earned run average while playing for Baltimore, Philadelphia and the Chicago Cubs. He pitched last year at Hawaii and was 6-5.

Rounding out the Padres system will be Cliff Ditto once again managing at Walla Walla in the Northwest League.

After 18 Years

KOGO-Padres to End Long Gamecast Pact

KOGO Radio will not carry the San Diego Padres Baseball games following the 1978 season, the final year of its present contract, it was announced by Joe Drilling, president of KOGO Radio.

"In spite of our 18-years of continuous broadcasting of Padre games, the decision was made not to proceed when the rights fees escalated more than 70% for the 1979 broadcast season.

"The increase made it unrealistic for the station to continue our long association with the Padres," he said.

"We certainly wish the club the best in the future, and will continue to support them as enthusiastically as we have in the past. We will also miss working with the fine people within the ball club on a day to day basis," he said.

Radio station 76 KFMB then came to terms with the Padres organization. It will carry live play-by-play broadcasts including all exhibition games beginning with the 1979 season, according to Paul E. Palmer, station manager for 76 KFMB Radio.

Palmer indicated that the agreement culminated four years of negotiations.

"To say that we are elated about the decision is an understatement. Our station has enjoyed outstanding involvement with San Diego State athletics and will continue to broadcast their basketball and football games. We are looking forward with great enthusiasm to our new association with Padres baseball."

This year's meet is scheduled for Saturday night, January 21, at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

The meet annually features the top high school, collegiate and open athletes. Some of the world-class athletes due to attend include West Germany's Thomas Wessinghage, Tanzania's Filbert Bayi, the world record holder at 1,500 meters, Kenya's Mike Boit and virtually all of the top Americans.

The high school girls who will be vying will be East County distance running aces Cheryl Flowers of Valhalla and Carol Keller of Helix in the mile, South Bay standout Helen Fulton in the 500 and the Crawford 640-yard relay team.

Flowers was a third place finisher in the state mile at 4:55.7 while Keller was third in the two-mile run. Keller's mile best is 5:06.1. Bakersfield's Linda Goen tops the field with a 4:47.8.

Fulton was clearly the best in San Diego County last year at 440 yards, clocking a CIF record 57.1. The favorite in the 500 is state champion Valerie Brisco of Los Angeles Locke.

Crawford's National record-setting 440 relay team has lost two of its aces but returns two others—state 100 finalists Danita Young and Judy Reed.

Padres Add Two To Scouting Crew

The San Diego Padres have expanded their scouting and minor league staffs with the addition of ex-major league pitcher Chuck Estrada and Lee Cassie it was announced by Bob Fontaine, Padres vice president, general manager.

Estrada has been named to the newly-created position of director of field activities. He will help supervise the club's conditioning program in Yuma during spring training and then serve as a special minor league instructor and scout once the season gets underway.

He had served as the minor league pitching instructor for the California Angels' last season.

During his 7-year major league career with the Baltimore Orioles, Chicago Cubs and the New York Mets he compiled a record of 50-44 with a 4.07 ERA. His best season came in 1960 in his rookie campaign when he led the American League with 18 victories.

San Ditgo has also added Les Cassie to the club's list of scouts for this coming season. Cassie will serve as the Padres San Diego County scout and will also be called upon to handle special assignments.

A long-time resident of San Diego, Cassie coached for many years in the local school system and handled such top players during his career as Bob Skinner (San Diego Junior College) and Deron Johnson and Floyd Robinson (San Diego High School).

He stepped down from the coaching ranks in 1959 and went on to become a vice-principal at Hoover and then Clairemont High Schools. In 1971 he was named as the Supervisor of Athletics for the San Diego School System, a position he held until he retired in 1975.

Scouting, however, is not new to Cassie as he worked as a scout for the New York Yankees for 14 years (1951-65) and the Washington Senators-Texas Rangers (1969-73).

He has held the title of associate scout with the Padres from 1975 through last season.

Construction Group Slaps Supps. for Nuke Plant Holdup

The San Diego Construction Industry Federation, whose members employ more than 25,000 building craftsmen, has "fully endorsed" the proposed construction of the $2.5 billion Sundesert nuclear power plant in Riverside County near Blythe.

In a letter to the Public Utilities Commission, the California Energy Commission (CEC) and other governmental agencies and legislative representatives, the Federation called for "full speed ahead, not aggravating and costly delays," which it blamed on roadblocks imposed by environmental groups. CEC now has the project under consideration.

The letter, signed by Allen Jaffe, chairman of the Federation's Legislative Committee, said power generated from the Sundesert plant is essential to the San Diego area's energy needs by the mid-1980s.

"The public is strongly in favor of nuclear power development," said Jaffe, who noted that was made "emphatically clear when voters overwhelmingly approved the building of nuclear plants in the vote on Proposition 15 in late 1975." The margin was 2 to 1 for nuclear plants throughout the state and 3 to 1 in San Diego County. Later surveys and similar votes have substantiated this public approval of nuclear power sources.

'Sight Strip' to Aid Sightless Veterans

A "sight strip" for the visually handicapped has been installed at the San Diego Regional Office and Outpatient Clinic in Mission Valley. The project is a joint effort of the DAV Industries and the Mission Lions Club of San Diego. The DAV donated funds to purchase the materials and the Lions provided labor for the installation.

The "sight strip" is composed of raised high-impact plastic sections and runs 250 feet for a bus stop on the city sidewalk, through the parking lot surrounding the VA building, to the front entrance.

The bright yellow strip also serves to warn drivers of the possible presence of pedestrians in the area of the VA building.

The letter was particularly critical of the San Diego County Board of Supervisors who voted 3 to 2 to oppose Sundesert.

"This action was shocking to the industry, especially when the San Diego area seeks to attract new industry," wrote Jaffe. "How can this be accomplished if the energy supply is inadequate? The supervisors have ignored a public mandate.

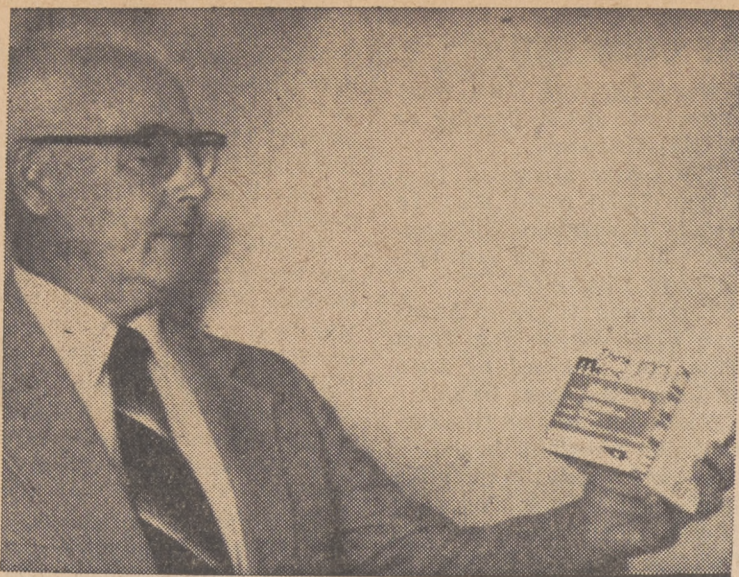

"The supervisors' intervention is even more appalling considering the project is in another county, beyond the jurisdiction of the local board. And it would help San Diego County!"

Costs of further delays will be astronomical, the letter added, pointing out that millions of dollars have already been invested in preparatory studies.

Metric System; How it Works

By John Corbett

Standard symbols are used in all branches of Knowledge. Often a capital letter and small letter represent different things.

Therefore, it is important to know when to capitalize and when not to do so.

In the metric system, the unit named for the individual it honors is spelled with small letters but the symbol (if there is more than one letter in the symbol only the first) is capitalized.

Symbols for units which do not honor anyone are written as small letters. Three variances: prefixes for tera, giga and mega are written as capitals.

Symbols are not abbreviations and should not be followed by periods or a plural "S".

Here are properties honoring individuals:

This HOV (High Occupancy Vehicle) demonstration project, which began January 3 of last year, provides for a 10-cent toll for carpools with three or more people, van pools and all transit and charter buses.

Originally the hours of operation were during daily commute periods.

Regular price for the bridge is 35 cents.

Ask Your C.H.P.

CHP Capt. C.M. Douglas

Last week Captain Douglas told a reader Interstate 8 was indeed patrolled with aircraft from a base in El Centro.

If you have a question, no matter how insignificant it may appear to you, ask it. It could save a citation or maybe even your life.

Address your questions in care of this newspaper and please allow at least three weeks for a reply to appear.

This Week's Question:

I just purchased sun screens to attach to the windows of my car. Where are these not permitted?

This Week's Answer:

You cannot place them on the front windshield or on the windows to either side of the driver.

You may place them on side windows to the rear of the driver and to the rear window if you have two outside rearview mirrors (one on the left and one on the right).

The event, sponsored by Exploring Family School, will be followed by a discussion. The program is open to the public.

SDG&E Asks Rate Boost

Electric rates for SDG&E customers may go up if the company's request for a rate increase beginning March 1, is approved by the Public Utilities Commission.

Rates above the lifeline allowance would be lifted by 0.512 cents a kilowatt hour.

Higher Pay for Veteran Trainees

Veterans attending school full time under the GI Bill who are participating in the V.A. work-study program are now paid the new minimum wage as of the first of the year.

Herbert R. Rainwater, Director of the VA's San Diego Regional Office, said the GI Bill Improvement Act of 1977 authorizes the VA to pay work-study students at the new minimum wage rate of $2.65 an hour.

He said the VA will pay, in advance, 40 percent of the total work-study allowance.

He reminded veteran students interested in supplementing their GI Bill income that the agency's work-study program permits the VA to pay for a maximum of 250 hours per semester.

Jobs are available for VA-related work either on campus or at a VA installation.

Priority for acceptance in the work-study program is given to veterans with service-connected disabilities. Financial need, motivation and the nature of the work are some of the additional criteria used for selection.

Claims Welfare Rolls Being Cut

Welfare grants have been cut by $57 million in 1977, as a result of a job placement program for welfare recipients in California.

Nearly 40,000 welfare recipients of which more than a third were able to move off welfare completely entered employment under the program.

Federal subsidies and tax credits to employers who train and hire employable recipients are provided by a program funded 90%, 10% state.

CentFeds Assets Grow

Central Federal Savings and Loan Association recorded a new high in assets at year's end.

Association president and managing officer, Fred C. Stalder, said assets exceeded $825 million — more than a 16% increase over year end 1976.

Stalder said he is extremely pleased with the Association's progress in 1977. "We're winding up the year in a stronger than ever financial position," he added.

Central Federal Savings operates a total of 26 offices — 9 in the San Fernando Valley and 17 in San Diego County. An additional office is scheduled to open during 1978 in Thousand Oaks regional shopping center located in the San Fernando Valley.

VA Pensioners To Receive Increases in Allotments

More than a million disabled veterans and 1.3 million widows and their children will receive a 6.5 percent increase in their January pension checks.

The increase was contained in legislation proposed in May by VA Administrator Max Cleland and signed into law by President Carter on December 2, 1977.

The new legislation sets the basic pension rates from $5 to $222 per month, according to income.

Cabaret Format Planned by SD Symphony

The San Diego Symphony Orchestra will go into the cabaret business with a new series of upcoming concerts in Golden Hall.

The Orchestra will present two winter season "pops" concerts in a new "cabaret" format which will feature nightclub tables and chairs instead of theatre seats, and alcoholic beverages.

Opening the series will be jazzman Benny Goodman who will appear on February 21. Part of his program will include the hit "Sing, Sing, Sing".

In the second performance, Academy Award winning composer/conductor Henry Mancini will conduct the orchestra on March 13. The program will feature his hit tunes "Moon River", "Pink Panther", "Days of Wine and Roses", and the theme from "Peter Gunn".

Beer and wine service will be available at Main Floor tables for legally consuming theatre-goers. No alcohol will be sold in the Loge or Balcony areas.

Tickets are priced from $5.50 for rear balcony to $7.50 for loge and front balcony. Most expensive seats in the house are the $9.50 main floor seats.

Tickets will be available later in January at the Convention and Performing Arts Center Box Office, 202 "C" street.

income.

Herbert R. Rainwater, Director of VA's San Diego Regional Office, said it also insures that no one will lose a pension solely because of the year's boost in Social Security benefits.

Pensions are paid to wartime veterans with other than dishonorable discharges if, before they reach age 65, they are totally disabled from non-service-connected causes and have no more than $3,770 in annual income if single, and $5,070 if they have dependents.

After age 65, only the income limitation is considered. The legislation raises the basic monthly pension rate for veterans whose health requires the regular aid and attendance of another person from $155 to $165.

Permanently housebound veterans not requiring the aid and attendance of another person will receive an additional $61 per month.

The new pension bill also includes a 6.5 percent increase in payments to parents of deceased veterans receiving dependency and indemnity compensation payments. Nearly 64,000 parents are on VA's compensation rolls.

The five-year cost of the pension increase is estimated at just over $789 million.

Veterans with service-connected disabilities had already received a 6.6 percent increase in their VA compensation checks by virtue of other legislation that went into effect October 1.

About Your Health

Obesity in Infants

An overweight baby runs a high risk of growing up to be an overweight adult.

There is also a good chance that the baby's parents are overweight. This may mean that there is a hereditary factor in obesity. But it more likely means, however, that family patterns of eating and overeating are imitated by one generation after another.

Many parents of overweight babies are not concerned about the potentially threatening situation since they assume that baby fat is natural and that infants will outgrow it. Some do, but the child who is grossly overweight by the age of five years is not likely to outgrow it.

Parents also tend to be indulgent about the chubbiness which often develops in children between the ages of seven and 11 years. Once the child enters adolescence, there is commonly a spurt of growth and the fat disappears. There are, however, far too many obese adolescents for parents to be sure this will happen to their child.

The difficulty of changing eating patterns and thus losing weight once adulthood is reached is all too well known. The health hazards of obesity, in terms of increased risks of high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes and gall bladder disease, are also well known. Since curing adult obesity seems to be a major medical and social problem, the approach now being stressed is to prevent it by starting to control the intake of food in infancy.

This does not mean placing an infant on a crash diet. Check with your baby's doctor before determining that he or she is overweight. A baby's weight must be judged in relation to his or her length and overall development pattern.

Breast-fed babies are less likely to gain weight rapidly than those who are bottle-fed. If you are bottle-feeding, do not use an over-concentrated formula. By using more water and less solid substance in the formula, you have a better chance of keeping the baby's weight within healthy limits.

However, you should follow your doctor's instructions for diluting formula. If the baby seems to need more nourishment, your doctor may suggest fruit and strained meat since that may satisfy the baby's apparent hunger and also provide protein and other nutrients he or she needs.

Many parents start a baby on cereal and other concentrated carbohydrates too early in infancy. Wait until the baby begins to crawl before you start on cereal. The drooling, a symptom of teething, contains the enzyme needed to digest starch and usually begins after three months. Check with your doctor before starting the child on cereal.

The infant's diet for the first year of life is completely under the control of adults, and it is during that period that parents can make a major contribution toward preventing obesity.

After the first year, the baby tends to imitate the adults in his or her environment and eats what they eat—or at least what they make available. Controlling obesity in children must then become a family project.

If parents and older children do not indulge in candy, soft drinks and other "junk food," the small child will not be exposed or become accustomed to them.

Once a child begins mingling with playmates outside the home, there is less protection against the temptation to eat unwisely. From television, the child may get the impression that he or she is missing many goodies by not being allowed the aggressively advertised, high-in-calories, low-nutrition junk food.

Despite outside influences, what a child eats during the formative years is determined primarily by the family's eating habits.

If given the basic elements of a nourishing diet, not encouraged to clean the plate or have second and third helpings, and stimulated to include physical activity in his or her daily routine, the child will less likely be overweight and will be more likely to be spared the emotional and physical distress of developing into an obese adolescent and, almost inevitably, into an obese adult.

State Returns

$6 Million in Unclaimed Land

SACRAMENTO — State Controller Kenneth Cory has reported Christmas came early throughout 1977 for more than 3,000 Californians who were reunited with other $6 million of their property which had been declared legally abandoned and unclaimed.

Cory said preliminary figures for the annual report on his administration of the Unclaimed Property Law show an unprecedented $16.5 million of such property received during the year—and a consequent increase in burden on his office to find the rightful owners.

"Wherever possible we mailed notices to the last known addresses of the owners and in addition we advertised the names of 34,500 persons and organizations in major newspapers throughout the state," Cory said. "This generated most of the claims we received, but we expect many more since most of the funds remain subject to claim forever."

Cory added stepped up enforcement by his office and better voluntary compliance with the law by holders of unclaimed assets were responsible for the sharp increase in property reported.

He compared the $16.5 million received this year to $1.2 million in 1969 and $3 million in 1974.

"Most of this property belongs to people who have either forgotten about it or for many reasons did not know it was rightfully theirs," he reiterated. "The California business community has been generally cooperative with our efforts to restore these funds to the true owners and our success to date indicates how well consumers can be protected when government and business work together."

The funds reported this year included almost $9 million from banks in unclaimed savings and checking accounts, and $5.4 million from travelers' checks, liquidation and corporate dividends.

More than $800,000 came from insurance companies in unclaimed life insurance, annuities and shareholder earnings.

"The unclaimed property program will continue to grow in the foreseeable future as we continue our compliance efforts and expand them into areas where reporting and enforcement need to be enhanced," Cory said. "The continued interest and cooperation of the business sector will play a major role in helping get these millions of dollars back into the owners' hands."

MASTER CHEF — Marc Gaurin, a cook for world's famous.

Marc Gaurin—A Man Who's Fed the Famed

How would you like to purchase edibles from the man who watched over the diet and eating habits of some of the most powerful men in the world?

Marc Gaurin, who is the new owner of Kay's Market at 9548 Jamacha Blvd., in Spring Valley, has served presidents and heads of State.

What's more he has a scrapbook of memento commendations to prove that his effort was fully appreciated because he did it well.

Gaurin retired as a Chief Petty Officer after serving 24 years in the U.S. Navy—but what great years those Navy years were!

He has served Jack Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline; Ike and Mamie, Dick and Pat, and Lyndon and Lady Bird.

He has also prepared food for Nikita Khrushchev, and the Agha Khan.

Gaurin served as chef for Postmaster General Marvin Watson and remained with him when he became Chief of Staff and Administrative Assistant under President Johnson.

He also was steward for Dwight Morrow when he was Secretary of the Navy during the early Johnson years.

Gaurin recalls the Agha Khan banquet. The food was prepared at the White House and carried to Mt. Vernon aboard the presidential yacht. Compliments were profuse.

The banquet for Khrushchev included caviar imported from Iran and served to the Russian bigwig at Camp David.

A dinner at Camp David for General Charles De Gaulle was a bust. The tall, testy general, at the time president of France, wouldn't eat. He wasn't the friendly sort.

Mrs. Kennedy, says Gaurin, liked French food, lobster and crab. Her husband was also a sea food fan—plus steak, which he liked nearly raw.

Ike preferred to barbecue his own steak after he personally marinated them. Then he would slant-cut them after they were medium cooked.

He particularly liked the way Gaurin prepared rice and baked beans.

Gaurin served the Nixons before he became president. Pat leaned toward salads. "She was a light eater," recalls Gaurin. But the vice president ate heartily of roast beef, steak and lobster.

Johnson's favorite eating style was that of the Texas barbecue. He liked barbecued ribs and Texas chili—hot—and without beans.

Middle Aged

Gaurin was born in the Philippines 54 years ago. He met and married Catherine in Norfolk in 1965. He joined the Navy in 1945.

He was serving as steward in 1959, while Adm. McCormick was Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet.

Soon, he was one of the few hand-picked from the U.S. Armed Forces to work for the President of the United States. After Ike, he stayed with Kennedy until after the President's assassination.

One of his more memorable experiences was being gassed during the Chicago Convention in 1968. It was the convention at which Johnson didn't show up.

Gaurin suffered no lasting effects from the gas which Chicago police used to put down the rioters.

"Gaurin was aboard the U.S.S. Nashville when McArthur invaded Leyte. The Nashville was McArthur's command ship.

Gaurin was also on the U.S.S. Nashville when it was bombed in the Philippines. He was set the old fields afire. He won War Medals for each of those two actions.

Later, he was assigned to the Amphib command ship Taconic which was the base of the operations of the Amphibious Atlantic Fleet.

His only period of fear came during the Cuban Crisis. The Capitol dining room was adjacent to the "situation room" where they held the National Security Crisis meeting.

Gaurin and his staff stayed up all night for President Kennedy's decision to blockade Cuba, a decision which could have brought a confrontation with Russia—one which might have triggered an atomic war.

Gaurin and his crew were on duty 24 hours to be ready to serve any amount of food that the situation might demand.

One of the steward's contributions to the nation's "joy of eating" are two recipes he was invited to submit to a nationally distributed cook book—THE FIRST LADIES COOK BOOK—a page collection of favorite recipes of the wives of the nation's governors.

The book was compiled by Mrs. Tim Babcock, who was first lady of Montana in 1962-1969.

On page 14 of the book is Gaurin's famed recipe for clam chowder. He says he has served it from time to time to many of the world's most prominent leaders.

After Gaurin retired from the Navy, he and former Chief of Staff Watson were reunited. Dr. Armand Hammer, chairman of the board of Occidental Petroleum, had hired Watson because of their acquaintanceship during Watson's White House years.

Watson then called on Gaurin to become chef for himself and Hammer. That put Gaurin on the path to the Spring Valley market but it wasn't evident at the time.

Later Gaurin was promoted to Occidental's Public Relations Department and then transferred to El Cajon as an executive of a pilot recycling operation, which converted garbage to oil. It proved to be uneconomically feasible and the project was dropped, earlier this year.

It was then Gaurin decided he wanted to be "commanding officer of my own operation." His investigation showed that the area where he bought Kay's Market had a great potential. Now, after just a few months of operation, it is in need of expansion. And he has plans for the improvement shortly after the first of the year.

Gaurin's family consists of a son, 3 stepdaughters and 4 grandchildren. Those old enough help in the market.

Gaurin says his military life was exciting but the real challenge is that of building his market into the kind of business where his growing list of Spring Valley friends can congregate. That, he says, is the most exciting part of it all.

Kay's Market Commanding Officer Marc Gaurin is on duty 6 a.m.-7:30 p.m. daily except Sunday. The market is open on Sunday when it is operated by his manager.

$10½ Million Is SDG&E's Tax Bill

San Diego Gas & Electric Company has written a check for $10,601,249 to the County of San Diego as the first installment on the company's 1977-78 property taxes.

William J. Karnes, Secretary, SDG&E, presented the tax payment check to the county tax collector.

The second installment on the 1977-78 taxes will be paid in April.

This figure represents the largest single payment to the county by any business, a spokesman for the county tax assessor's office said.

Dog License Renewals Are in the Mail This Week

The county tax collector began this week mailing dog license renewal applications to owners of 96,000 dogs whose licenses expire Saturday.

According to Tax Collector James Jones, each application form is preprinted with essential information about the individual dog whose license will expire.

The renewal form shows the date of the latest rabies vaccination and whether the license can be renewed for a one-year or two-year period without another vaccination.

Jones said license fees remain the same as last year. Rates for unsprayed females are $12 for one year or $20 for two years.

Owners of sprayed females or male dogs will pay $6 for a one-year license or $10 for a two-year license.

A late fee of $2 will be charged for payments received after the end of February.

Owners of females sprayed after January 17, 1972, are entitled to one free license. Since this one-time license can be for either a one- or two-year period, it is suggested the owner of a sprayed female whose vaccination is due to expire in a year could buy a one-year license now and take advantage of the two-year free license next year.

Jones urged owners of previously licensed dogs to use the preprinted renewal forms they receive in the mail in order to avoid duplicate billings. Owners of dogs who have not been licensed before can get applications for new licenses at veterinarians' offices and other locations throughout the county.

Renewal applications will be mailed only to owners of dogs whose licenses expire this year. The tax collector said most of these owners should receive forms by next week.

$10,000 Worth Of State Art To Be Bought

The public may attend a two day meeting on how $10,000 in state earmarked funds will be spent to provide the State Office Building on Front street with art.

The money comes from a 1976 law signed by Brown allocating one percent of the funds spent on public buildings to be spent on artwork.

The new law, now Chapter 21 of Part 10b of Division 3 of Title 2 of the Government Code mandates: "The legislature finds and declares that the State of California has a responsibility for expanding public experience with art. The Legislature recognizes that other states have enacted legislation requiring the expenditure of 1 percent of funds allocated for the construction of state buildings for works of art for such buildings."

The meetings on how the money will be spent will be held Wednesday and Thursday at the State Office Building, 1350 Front street, and will begin at 7 p.m.

Transportation Committee Mills to Chair National

California Senate President Pro Tem James Mills has been appointed chairman of the Transportation Committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL), the official representative of the country's 7,600 state lawmakers and their staffs.

The Transportation Committee is one of 9 standing committees comprising the State-Federal Assembly, which determines NCSL policies on pending federal issues, ranging from welfare reform to a national energy plan. These policy positions guide NCSL lobbying efforts before Congress, the White House and federal agencies, providing state legislatures with a strong voice in national decision-making.

"Our committee this year will be examining the proposed Surface Transportation Act of 1978 that will increase funding to state and local governments for highways and mass transit," Mills said. "We believe there should be some flexibility in this program so states can put federal funds to work in meeting their transportation needs."

Mills, who has served in the California Legislature since 1961, is an acknowledged expert on public transportation. He recently was nominated to the board of directors of Amtrak by President Carter. Mills has served on both the Assembly and Senate Transportation Committees and has sponsored numerous transportation bills, including legislation earmarking state gasoline tax revenues to mass transit.
